Notes: Piles of feedstock soil and treated soil need to be covered with poly sheeting and weighted down. The better they are weighted down, the less the site will need to be visited to replace the covers. Until confidence in the integrity of the covers is obtained, they should be checked at least once a week and more frequently, if conditions are unusually windy.

A log of site visits and activities needs to be maintained for review by the DEC.

If sheens are detected, absorbent pads need to be placed in the sheens to remove the floating oil.
